Dear Authors,

In this Editorial, I am pleased to announce the celebration of ten years of platinum open access of Biointerface Research in Applied Chemistry.

It has been ten years of permanent free access to newest and highly impact research provided by outstanding contributors who work together with dedicated editors through the success of this journal.

All articles were published under the most flexible reuse standard – the CC BY license and Biointerface Research in Applied Chemistry was indexed in important databases, such as: Clarivate Analytics and Scopus.

Currently, the publisher is CrossRef member and all the papers have assigned a unique DOI and all manuscripts are checked for similarities with other sources before publication.

Biointerface Research in Applied Chemistry is very grateful to all the peers, authors and editors for contributing to its successful development.

New and previous authors are most welcome to submit their recent work and development to be considered for publication in Biointerface Research in Applied Chemistry.
